

Steven Petrevski

Steven Petrevski serves as Senior Vice President - Market Development, Data & Analytics. He is responsible for developing and executing Aon's strategy to deliver the next generation of Data and Analytics driven value for its clients. He joined Aon in July 2017.

Prior to joining Aon, Steve was the General Manager of Security and Fraud Solutions at First Data. As GM, he was responsible for product development, sales and support for over one thousand financial institutions and one million merchants spanning local businesses to the world's largest retailers and banks. Before joining First Data, he was with JPMorgan Chase and focused on driving technology strategy and business development across the cyber security, fraud, and analytics sectors by leveraging emerging technology connectivity with Silicon Valley. Previously, Steve worked in multiple roles at UBS including systems development and architecture in the Investment Bank and in the Technology Strategy and Alliance function and as a technology consultant at IBM and BearingPoint.

Steve currently serves on the Board of Advisors of Nanowear, a textile-based nanosensor technology with applications in the cardiac, neurological and diabetic monitoring markets. Additionally, he sits on advisory boards of multiple venture capital firms and supports a number of charities, including The Leukemia and Lymphoma Society.